

Section 4. Special Types of Research Opportunities

Robert F. Rycek, Editor

Research At A Local Zoo.....	151
Joanne D. Altman
Engaging Students in Community-Based Research.....	156
Maya M. Khanna
Using Field Research Techniques to Enhance the Undergraduate Experience.....	162
Joseph J. Benz
Conducting Research at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire's Campus Autism Program.....	165
Kevin P. Klatt
Research in the Rat Lab: Some Thoughts on Undergraduates doing Behavioral Neuroscience Research	168
Mark C. Zrull
Learning from Chimpanzees: Internships at the Chimpanzee & Human Communication Institute	172
Mary Lee Jensvold & Roger Fouts
Archival Research in Forensic Psychology	177
Matthew T. Huss
Neuroscience Research	180
Cynthia Gibson
Using the Web for Student Research	185
John H. Krantz & T. William Altermatt
Environmental Psychological Research with Undergraduates in National Parks	189
Britton L. Mace
Practical Advice for Doing Research with Preschoolers	195
Ruth L. Ault
Teaching Qualitative Research to Undergraduate Students	199
Jill R. Brown & Daniel J. Foy
Conducting Archival Research on the History of Psychology	203
Lizette Royer	