A Pre-Conference Workshop Proposal for STP's Annual Conference on Teaching

Teaching of Psychology Incubator: Supporting Innovation in Teaching Psychology

Proposal

The Teaching of Psychology Incubator (TOPInc) is proposed as an annual pre-conference workshop to occur on the Thursday afternoon before the Annual Conference on Teaching (ACT), prior to the social hour. It would not conflict with any other public ACT event. The three-hour workshop would be led by experienced mentors who would work closely with up to 12 registrants, helping to bring their creative ideas related to the teaching of psychology to fruition, as described below. By the end of the workshop, registrants will have a more defined strategic plan for their innovative projects. TOPInc's longevity as an annual pre-conference workshop will be assessed after its inaugural pilot run.

Rationale

Scholarly research and expertise related to teaching of psychology is largely communicated via traditional academic avenues (journals, chapters, conference presentations, etc.). But, non-traditional means of dispensing this information are also valuable and have an arguably broader impact in terms of audience reach. Teaching-focused websites, podcasts, social media presences, conferences, videos, and blogs reach tens-of-thousands of educators on an annual basis. They promote a variety of aspects of teaching psychology, from technology tools in the classroom, to cutting-edge research, to interviews with authors and educators, to teaching demonstrations. Most of these projects were started by individuals, not for tenure and promotion or for financial gain, but because of a personal interest and a hunch that others might also be interested. These innovators have broadly and freely shared valuable scholarly knowledge and expertise that has helped thousands of teachers of psychology.

An Innovative Ideas Incubator

Business incubators exist to offer the support, resources, and knowledge that new businesses need in order to grow. In the same way, TOPInc will help teachers of psychology develop and accelerate ideas they have for non-traditional scholarly impact. Whether ideas are at the beginning, middle, or end of development, our experienced innovators will share their expertise on topics like:

- Generating and Building Ideas
- Articulating Purpose
- Targeting Audience
- Project Promotion
- Project Funding
- Project Dissemination
- Networking and Partnerships
- Technology Basics (e.g., starting a website)
- Mentoring and Advising

Leaders:

Garth Neufeld
R. Eric Landrum
Jane Halonen
Anna Ropp

Timing: Thursday October 17, 2019, 2pm-5pm

Description and Advertising:

2019 ACT Pre-Conference Workshop: The Teaching of Psychology Incubator (TOPInc)

The Society for the Teaching of Psychology announces the first Teaching of Psychology Incubator (TOPInc). Like a business incubator, TOPInc will help individuals develop and accelerate ideas they have for non-traditional scholarly impact. We invite all teachers of psychology to join us for this free pre-conference workshop.

TOPInc will allow a small group of registrants, who have ideas for things like starting conferences, blogs, social media presences, podcasts, books, articles, or resources related to teaching psychology, to sit down with experienced innovators who will share expertise in the following areas:

- Generating and Building Ideas
- Articulating Purpose
- Targeting Audience
- Project Promotion
- Project Funding
- Project Dissemination
- Networking and Partnerships
- Technology Basics (e.g., starting a website)
- Mentoring and Advising

Whether ideas are at the very beginning, middle, or end of development, workshop mentors will help move innovators toward more defined and ultimately successful and sustainable plans for their projects.

TOPInc will take place at the ACT conference hotel on Thursday, October 17th, 2019 from 2pm-5pm. It is limited to the first 12 registrants who will work closely with TOPInc mentors. This year's mentors are Jane Halonen, Eric Landrum, Garth Neufeld, and Anna Ropp.

If you are interested being a part of the Teaching of Psychology Incubator, please fill out this interest form by September 9, 2019.

Advertising: The call for this pre-conference workshop will take place through the ACT registration page, the STP Listserv, through the STP Facebook page, through the STP Newsletter, as well as through the PsychSessions podcast.

Signups: Ideally, we would integrate our registration through the ACT registration page. However, we can also do this on the side, as a Google Form. We will mention that we will be taking registrants on a first-come first-served basis. If the workshop fills, we will shut down the ability to register.

Meeting Location and Budget: Ideally, we would like to host this pre-conference workshop at the conference hotel as an official STP-sponsored event. However, since we do not have funding for renting the space, we request that a hotel conference room be provided by ACT/STP. ACT Director Jordan Troisi has looked into this on our behalf and has estimated a cost of $465, including taxes and fees. We want to emphasize that this is for the room only. This does not include refreshments or Audio/Visual as we believe that we can run this workshop effectively without these additional expenditures. Pending acceptance of this plan from members of the STP Executive Committee, Jordan Troisi has said that he would be happy to work with the hotel to make this arrangement on our behalf. Due to the central location of this year's conference, we believe that our leadership team can arrive early enough, on the day of the workshop, to lead it. However, if we were to repeat this workshop in subsequent years at less centralized locations, we might need to make an request for additional support from STP (e.g., one night in hotel). For ACT 2019, the estimated $465 for the conference room space is our only request.

Final Report: Society for the Teaching of Psychology Global Education Summit (2019)

The inaugural Society for the Teaching of Psychology (STP) Global Education Summit was held at the United Nations mandated University for Peace, Centre for Executive Education in Costa Rica from May 23-25, 2019. Attendees participated in workshops and activities relevant to global education including: 21st century skills, design thinking, global citizenship, and educating for empathy and cultural humility. Attendees also completed a global education design challenge geared toward specific means to incorporate global education into the teaching of psychology. The STP Global Education Summit was organized by STP Vice President for Diversity and International Relations and received grant funding from the APA Board of Educational Affairs and the APA Committee on International Relations in Psychology.

As a faculty development activity, participants at the summit explored practical applications of global citizenship education and how its principles might be integrated into academic departments, international partnerships, and classroom activities. More specifically, the topics included:

- Global citizenship education - case studies, frameworks, and tools to enable participants to integrate the values of global citizenship and social justice into their future projects.
- 21st century skills - principles, concepts, frameworks and methodologies for educating in a fast-changing world.
- Design thinking - applying the principles of design thinking to help implement international partnership goals and build an innovative learning environment for students.
- Educating for empathy and cultural humility - exploring the theoretical frameworks and applying principles of empathy and cultural humility to their work as educators.

The UN mandated University for Peace (UPEACE), Centre for Executive Education was the international partner for this initiative. UPEACE's Centre for Executive Education was founded in order to leverage UPEACE's growing experience and expertise in providing customized short courses in Costa Rica. The Centre works with universities, non-profit organizations, and businesses to arrange customized courses focused on themes such as leadership, education, soft skills, human rights and others.

The STP Global Education Summit culminated with 15 faculty representing a variety of institutions of higher education, backgrounds, and specialties within the field. The experience provided valuable opportunities for collaboration across academic departments and institutions and promoted community building and professional development for teachers of psychology. Each attendee has been invited to present on a symposium at the STP Annual Conference on Teaching as well as to contribute to additional teaching of psychology resources, including blogs and OTRP resources. Write-ups about the summit will appear in the STP newsletter and the Global Insights newsletter published by APA Office of International Affairs.

The anticipated outcomes of the summit include 1. an increased understanding of principles related to global education, 2. positive changes in attitudes related to global education, and 3. the implementation of at least one global education strategy in their courses, programs or institutions by the end of the following academic year. These outcomes will be measured by both an evaluation distributed to participants on the final day of the summit as well as a 12-month follow up survey.
